HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 13 .- The ter

The presence of many distinguished per-

INSURGENTS IN MACEDONIA SAID TO HAVE BEEN ANNIHILATED.

Artillery Used by Turks to Rout the Rebels from Mountain Strongholds-Many Refugees.

MONASTIR, Oct. 12, via Salonica, Macedonia, Oct. 13 .- This district is settling down. The insurgents have been routed and practically annihilated in the Peristire mountains, though their stronghold is still the meeting place of what insurrectionists remain in the region. Chakalaroff, the insurgent leader, is still at large in the Kastoria district, but most of the peasants who accompanied him have surrendered. The inspector general, Hilm! Pasha, in concert with the mixed commispion, is arranging to rebuild the homes which were destroyed, out of government funds. The reconstruction is proceeding. Columbus, O., and Cincinnati are registered however, under numerous difficulties. SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 13.-A band seventy insurgents, caught near the frontier by Bulgarian troops, was sent to Sofia yesterday. The passage of bands across the frontier has become increasingly difficult, owing to the precautions of the government and the increase in the number of frontier guards. The general situation is unchanged. Fear is expressed in many quarters that the Turks will oppose the application of the Austro-Russian reform plans.

Turkish troops recently discovered a passing place of insurgents and refugees in the mountains in the vicinity of Okhrida (twenty-eight miles from Monastir) and routed them, after several days' fighting. The Turks used artillery. The pursuit of the refugees is said to have been accompanied by great severity and the murder of many Three hundred and fifty refugees from pecial to the Indianapolis Journal. SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 13 .- South Bend to be the hub of a perfect network of electric railways. A project is now on foot to bring about such a condition of affairs and interurban cars will be running from South Bend in all directions within the next few years. The scheme is fostered by George F. McCulloch, president of Indiana Union Traction lines. It includes the mergthe Indiana Railway Company, the South Bend & Southern Michigan Railway Company, the Indiana Western Railway Company and probably the Chicago & Indiana Air-line Railway Company, with a line which McCulloch proposes to build was fractured. He remained unconscious from Peru to South Bend.

Before beginning work on the Peru and South Bend line the Indianapolis man wants to secure control of the electric lines leading out of the city. As soon as he can accomplish his purpose the South Bend & Southern Michigan Railway Company will be extended to St. Joseph and Benton Harigan, via Carlisle and Hudson lake. At the same time these roads are being exthe proposed line between South Bend and Peru. The latter line will include a branch road from Peru to Logansport, Ind. The distance between Peru, Ind., and St. Joseph, Mich., is 110 miles. The route selected includes stations a Rochester, Argos, Plymouth, Lapaz and Lakeville. The Logansport branch will extend through New Waverley and will be fifteen miles long. If the McCulloch scheme is carried out South Benders will be able to go to Indianapolis in electric cars, as an announcement has been made that the Indianapolis Northern Railway, connecting Indianapolis and Logansport, will be in operation on Jan. 1.

Green was sent to the prison for a term of one to fourteen years. Ten years of the maximum time is yet to be served. It was considered best to take Green to prison to serve the unexpired term of ten years rather than prosecute him at this time for attempted murder, as the punishment will be just as great if he was tried and found guilty of the present charge. Rather than be taken to prison he planned to kill himself. Before retiring last evening he asked the turnkey of the jail for a bottle of liniment which he wished to use on a sore hand. Instead of applying the liniment to the wound he drank the contents of the bottle. His mouth and throat were badly burned. He did not have a sufficient quantity of morphine to kill, but he suffered some from its effects. CONDITIONS IN ARCTIC.

Facts that Indicate Ziegler Expedition May Be Frozen In. New York Sun.

Those who have studied the difficulties of navigation in the arctic are not much surprised by the tidings brought by the letter which William Ziegler has received from Anthony Fials, in command of his north polar expedition. The letter was written in Barents sea, between Nova Zembia and Franz Josef Land, and was brought south by a sealer which Ziegler's steamer America happened to meet.

The expedition had been following the edge of the ice pack west of Nova Zembia for many miles vainly looking for a lead through which to push north. It was about to turn westward, nearer to Spitzbergen, in the hope of finding an opening to the north. When the ice conditions are difficult in Barents sea the fact is generally due to prevailing easterly winds, which bring reat masses of ice from the Arctic ocean. shores of Spitzbergen, rendering them un-

As a rule, the waters between Nova Zembla and Franz Josef Land may be crossed by a steamer every year. Sometimes, howit is impossible to push through the ice to Franz Josef Land. Further news of the Ziegler expedition nay not be received until next summer, but when it comes it will be read with interest. for the conditions this year are such that it will not be surprising if the America is frozen in and will be compelled to spend the coming winter helplessly in the ice between Europe and Franz Josef Land. The Tagetthof, on which Weyprecht and Prayer, the Austrian explorers, discovered Franz Josef Land on Aug. 30, 1873, had exactly this experience. The vessel, steaming north, succeeded in pushing into the ice, but was caught fast by the closing floe while still within sight of Nova Zembla. Her party had a most miserable time as they drifted slowly north through the dark-

that the vessel would be crushed, so the explorers built a house on the main floe, where coal, food and other supplies were

They drifted north and west all through the winter of 1872-1873 and through the fol-lowing summer until the last of August, when they finally saw the outlines of a bold and rocky land rising before them. Their toil and suffering had not all been in vain, for they now knew that they had added a new land to the known domains the world. Then came the great sledge journeys of the spring of 1874, which revealed a large part of the archipelago they had discovered. The Tegetthof, however, was never freed from the ice. She was abandoned on May 29, and the party succeeded with terrible difficulty in dragging ceeded with terrible difficulty in dragging boats southward to the free sea, where they fell in with Russian fishermen, who took them back to civilization.

The Danish Meteorological Institute recently published its report on the ice conditions in the Arctic sea in 1902. These conditions were very unfavorable for navigation alike in Barents sea, the region of Franz Josef and around Spitzbergen, east of Greenland and Iceland. The European Arctic has had two successive bad ice years, which was very unfortunate both for the Ziegler expedition, under Mr. Baldwin last year, and for the present expedition, under Mr. Fiala. It will be good news indeed if it is learned that by some happy chance Fiala has reached Franz Josef Land this season and is able to do the fall work preliminary to his proposed sledge journey to the far north next season.

CASE OF NATHAN RANKIN FOR THE MURDER OF KOONSMAN.

Prosecution Puts a Former Jury on the Stand-Plea of the Defense for

Judicial Clemency. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAPORTE, Ind., Oct. 13 .- The Rankin murder case went to the jury to-night, Judge Richter holding a session of the Circuit Court this evening in order that the trial might not be carried over until to-morrow. Prosecutor Clarke surprised the defense this morning. After the evidence of Chief McWeeney, of the South Bend police force, Charles Shurmann, Rankin's Hebrew companion, and several others who had knowledge pertaining to the crime, he called the jurors that convicted Mallory of the same crime. They testified that Rankin, on stand in the trial, swore that he held a robbery, and when Boone shot Koonsman, There was no other way to get this evidence before the jury, as it was not expected that

The State's attorney also caused consternation among the lawyers for the defense signed under oath by Rankin on Jan. 26 last in which he stated that he was with Melville Boone and Joseph Mallory on the night of Dec. 13, 1902, when an attempt was made to rob John Koonsman's grocery store in South Bend, and that Koonsman was shot and killed by Boone; that he (Rankin) had a weapon in his hand and that Mallory was directly behind him. He also declared in the affidavit that the statement was madwithout fear of punishment or reward and and of his own free will. The defense made every effort to keep this statement from going before the jury, but testified for the prosecution at the three previous trials and that he had materially aided in securing the conviction of Boone and Mallory, the principals in the murder, and was therefore entitled to leniency. The attorneys for the defense made a statement to the jury in which a strong plea for clem-ency was made and the claim made that Prosecutor Clarke had promised Rankin he would let him off easily, the same plea being made still stronger to-night in the arguments of Lawyers McInterney and Wurzer Prosecutor Breece opened for the State and State's Attorney Clarke closed, asking for the infliction of the death penalty.
